From North Carolina.

(Correspondence of the New York Tribune.)

RALEIGH, N. C., July 13th.—The collection of the direct tax in North Carolina is assuming an interesting shape to the country. I give you the facts. The Tax Commissioners for North Carolina are John R. French, of Ohio; Hiram Potter, Jr., of Wisconsin, and E. H. Sears, of Iowa. These gentlemen opened their office in Newbern on the 12th of April, 1865, for the reception of taxes. There was a remarkable promptness and even cheerfulness, on the part of the taxpayers in that county (Craven) and now, at the expiration of the time allowed for their payment, the taxes for that county are nearly all paid in. A few who left Newburn upon our occupation of that place and went to South Carolina, have not paid and their lands now reckoned among abandoned estates, may, and probably will, be sold. They opened their next office in the town of Beaufort, Carteret county on the 10th of June, but as yet no report has come in from that county. It is believed however to be favorable. On June 20th the office for the collection of taxes was opened in the city of Raleigh, with as good prospects and even better than those at Newbern. On the eighth day, June 28th, the receipts were eleven hundred and thirty dollars and ninety-seven cents. From that time there has been a falling off in receipts, some days not even a dollar being paid. This is attributed to the open and strenuous efforts which are making by Governor Holden and others to have the collection of taxes suspended on the ground of the inability of the property holders to pay. In consequence of these public efforts and the impression, which has become general, that they will succeed with the Administration at Washington, many persons, who are known to have money, have been heard to say "We will wait until about the last day (of grace) and see if we can not escape the payment." This tax is part of the direct tax of twenty millions of dollars which was levied in 1861, and which was apportioned, as provided by the Constitution, among the several States—five slaves counting (then) as only three of the actual population. The proportion for this State was five hundred and seventy six thousand, one hundred and ninety four and two thirds dollars. The loyal States, let it be remembered, had all paid their proportion of this tax in 1862—every dollar of it. North Carolina now asks to have the payment of this tax suspended—one of the States which actively aided to pile up this burden of public debt—while the loyal States are required not only to pay their just proportion, but also an increase in order to relieve them.

The North Carolina Standard a day or two since, set forth in a long article the ruinous and oppressive nature of this task, if the collection is now enforced by the sale of lands in default of payment.

There is no telling where these indulgences claimed for North Carolina on account of loyalty may stop, and it may become a matter of justice to other States, who, to say the least, have taken no more active part in the rebellion than this State, to have them also let up on account of the poverty they have brought upon themselves by their acts of rebellion. Can we make fish of one and flesh of another? By a wise and most paternal provision of the act referred to, but very few of the poorer land-owners have any direct tax to pay at all, from the fact that the Government exempts from taxation every man's homestead of the value of $500 and under. Above that sum the rate of taxation is eight mills on the dollar, or one eighth of one per cent. A farm of, say 200 acres, the averaged assessed value of which would be from three to four dollars per acre, $600 or $800 total, would be taxed $4 80 or $6 40. Deducting the $500 exemption, there would be left to be paid 80 cents, or $2 40. In nine cases out of ten the owners live on their estates, which give them the benefit of the exemption.

In the page of the Assessor's books in which there are thirty-three names, there are only nine who have to pay any tax at all, provided they reside on the estate, which is usually the case. Of thirty three other names, there are fourteen who would have to pay taxes ranging from forty cents to five dollars, and only one whose tax exceeds twenty dollars, and he owns eight hundred and sixteen acres of land.

To say that such a tax law is now onerous and impossible of payment, with all the internal revenue and other taxes so soon to be imposed, is to affirm that it can never be paid—and the loyal States may as well make up their mind to shoulder the whole public debt and pay all the internal revenue taxes.

A glance at the foregoing facts will be conclusive to every mind that the tax referred to is not likely to affect the poor farmers at all, but will fall chiefly upon the large land-owners, who have been mainly responsible for the war. Complaints come—not from the moderate farmers, who often say, "The tax is less than we expected," and who pay cheerfully, but large land and late slave owners—the aristocracy of the land—who have been at the bottom of the rebellion.

The one-quarter cotton tax has been taken off; now there is a movement to abolish the confiscation laws; next a petition for the pardon of all offenders, then a request to suspend the collection of national taxes. Look out soon for the proposition to have the whole Southern war debt assumed by the nation. Hail Columbia and no vote for the negro.

STANTON AND PRESIDENT BUCHANAN.—Ex-Governor Washburne's oration at Portland on the Fourth of July contains the following:

> And that no example might be wanting to illustrate the degeneracy of the time and the perfidy of the public men who, at such a period, could alone occupy the high places of power, it was found that an Administration of the people's choice and representing what appeared to be the average opinion and sentiment of the country had deliberately set itself to the work, in concert with open traitors, of betraying and destroying the Government it had been appointed and sworn to preserve. And so well were its plans laid for the accomplishment of this flagitious purpose that they could scarcely have failed if not to accomplish the end designed, still to have produced such complications and given the rebellion such additional advantages as would have rendered the preservation of the Union, if possible, a matter of vastly greater difficulty and cost than it [illegible] had it not been for one of those fatal [illegible] which under the overruling hand of Providence men engaged in wicked enterprises are [illegible] make. We tremble when we think that the salvation of the nation's prestige and honor if not of its life and of the cause of free government every where depended upon the accident as it seemed of the accession in the Winter of 1861, of Edwin M. Stanton to the Cabinet of President Buchanan. He made himself at once the ruling spirit and the directing power of that false but weak Administration, and by his own personal strength, which was "as the strength of ten" by his iron will and his sublime devotion, averted that monstrous crime, that unutterable disgrace, and that last calamity—disunion by consent of the Government itself.

GOVERNMENT MEETS THE QUESTION.—The question of taste about the reopening of Ford's theater in Washington as a place of gaiety—after the dreadful scene of blood enacted there, and which plunged a nation into mourning—has been met and adjusted by the Government in the only manner agreeable to a just consideration of the case. That the proprietor of the property had a legal right to resume his legitimate business in the building seems clear enough, but it would have been exceedingly distasteful to public sentiment and to sensitive minds it would have appeared little less than a national disgrace. Therefore Government has done wisely in renting the theater from Mr Ford and securing against any present difficulty in the matter by taking possession of the establishment until after the meeting of Congress or until the 1st of February 1866, at which date it will be returned to Mr Ford if Congress has not in the meantime made an appropriation for the purchase of the property. The scenery and furniture of the theater has been packed for removal, and Government would take possession on the 24th of July.

SATURDAY MORNING SEPTEMBER [illegible]

The Cholera on its March

That terrible [illegible] the Asiatic or epidemic cholera [illegible] rapidly over the eastern hemisphere. [illegible] ago we heard that it had begun its ravages in India, the place where this fearful [illegible] had its origin [illegible] and from which [illegible] during the last half century it has spread apparently at regular intervals over almost all the earth. Cholera [illegible] has long been endemic in the upper parts of Hindostan. It was first known beyond that country in 1817. The great epidemic which began that year and traveled over the world originated in the delta of the Ganges 100 miles above Calcutta. It gradually found its way into the great cities of India, visiting Bombay in 1820, where it destroyed 150,000 persons. From thence it passed into Burmah, China and the East Indian Islands. In 1821 it advanced up the river courses toward the northwest to Persia and Asia Minor. It was not until 1827 that it appeared in Europe. In June 1830 it reached Moscow, and during the following summer it spread over the greater part of Germany. In October of the same year it appeared at Sunderland in England. It speedily reached Edinburg and London, and in March 1832 was in Paris. In June of that year it suddenly broke out at Quebec, its first appearance on this continent. A few days after, it was in New York, and from that city it visited almost all parts of the United States. By 1834 its fury was abated in this country, though the disease prevailed alarmingly in Europe until 1837. Thus ended the first career of this terrible epidemic.

In 1847 the cholera again left its native haunts and spread quickly over all Asia, Europe and America. In 1848-49 it prevailed in the United States, but in a much milder form than on its first visitation. Some medical have asserted that the disease was not the cholera proper, and that it was merely an epidemic resembling it. But its ravages in some places were such as ought to leave no doubt that it was the same epidemical disease. In the cities of the Eastern States it was not observed after 1850, but was said to have prevailed on the plains between here and the Missouri river two years later.

Last year this scourge was reported to have appeared again at Calcutta, Bombay and Madras. During the last spring and the present summer it has advanced westward with great rapidity. Our latest accounts state that its ravages at Alexandria, Constantinople, Messina and Palermo are frightful. It was said to have reached England early last month, but late advices make no mention of its appearance there. It is nearly certain, however, that the disease will spread over the world again, and we shall look for its dread coming upon this continent by next year. Though it does not often spread so rapidly in winter as in summer, its ravages are sometimes as great during the former as in the latter season. It raged with great fatality in St. Petersburg during the winter of 1831-32, thus proving that intense cold does not destroy the morbific cause. Almost all the eminent physicians of the world concur in the opinion that the cholera is not contagious, but it seems as if its regular advance from one place to another, apparently as if carried about by those engaged in travel or commerce, would disprove this opinion. Science has never been able to discover the primary cause of the disease. But with cholera, as in the case of every epidemic, there are certain predisposing causes which favor its propagation. Its ravages are always proportionately greater among the wretched inhabitants of crowded and filthy tenements in large cities, than elsewhere. If the disease is now raging in England, it can hardly be a great while until it makes its appearance in America. Such, at least, is the experience of the past, and if we escape now from this terrible visitation, we shall have reason for great thankfulness to Heaven.

Congressmen from the South.—The Lynchburg Virginian of the 11th July has some remarks on "eligibility to office" in that State. From the tone of the Southern papers it is perfectly certain that some of the late rebellious States will send members who cannot be admitted to Congress upon an equality with loyal men. To talk about placing those in Congress who were active agents in the great rebellion, is presumptuous insolence on the part of defeated traitors. The Southern States must send other men than these, or they cannot be represented. The Virginian talks about appealing from a "fanatical Congress" to the patriotic people of the United States. Now the people are more determined to exclude these leading rebels from all high positions, than Congress can possibly be. Patriotic people are to consult their own and the public safety in all their dealings with the traitors of the late rebellion, nor will they be particularly regardful of what factious rebels may say or desire. We quote from the Virginian's article:

We are frequently asked what agents can be or ought to be selected to represent this State in the Legislature and in Congress. The question is asked more especially with reference to eligibility. Upon this point we may say that nobody is eligible—nobody worth mentioning, much less electing. Within the whole range of our acquaintance we scarcely know a man—no matter what his antecedents previous to the war—who can conscientiously take the numerous test oaths prescribed. They will bar all that are fit to represent Virginia. But, nevertheless, our best, most conservative men should be selected. So far as the Legislature is concerned, if it be invested with conventional powers, such of the members as can act (if there be any) will doubtless organize and remove the disability that would exclude their associates. This is the only practicable way that we can perceive open to the Legislature. In view of the fact, too, that the next General Assembly may have to exercise conventional powers—with which the people will be invited to invest them at the polls—they should be chosen with uncommon care. As to members of or candidates for Congress the same circumspection should be observed. Let us select good, wise, conservative, patriotic men, and if they are refused admission into the national councils we must make the best of it and pursue whatever wise and prudent course may be open to us. We may have to take an appeal from the unreasoning, illiberal and fanatical members of Congress to the sober intelligence and patriotic impulses of the people of the United States. But let us start right, and leave consequences to take care of themselves.

Gone to Writing Letters.—Wade Hampton, of the rebel cavalry, would not surrender when the Confederacy "caved," declaring he was going to hold out against all the low born and base bred Yankees in existence. Nor would he ever speak to a Northern man again, that he wouldn't. Wade has since given it up. He has been paroled in the regular way. This redoubtable representative of the chivalry has lately been writing letters telling bad stories about Sherman. Though he wouldn't speak to a Northern man, he condescends to talk about one. Wade no doubt feels quite ferocious just now. Pity that he couldn't be hanged so that his miseries would be at an end.

Disgusted with the Name.—The late rebels of the South protest against our calling them "chivalry" hereafter. They do not like to be thus derisively spoken of. Five or six years ago the fustianists gloried in the name. Now they are disgusted with it, and beg us never to mention it "more."

The Telegraph.—Late last evening the line broke beyond Eugene City, and on account of this mishap, our telegraphic report is meagre this morning.

Mr. Arthur Tappan died at New Haven, Conn., on the 22d of July. He had reached the age of 80 years.

Letter from Union County

Grand Ronde, August 26, 1865.

Editor Oregonian:

Not long since an article appeared in the [illegible] stigmatizing Judge Pyle of this county for his independent action in the matter of the appointment of a county judge to supply the vacancy in that office in this county, also charging that Governor Gibbs had not honestly and faithfully performed his duty in the premises. The writer of the article alluded to knew full well that what then appeared over his fictitious signatures was false—false in the extreme. He knew he had been laboring for that which he could not be legally, justly nor even apparently right—hence he was dissatisfied with himself and like the rabid cur, bitch at every thing and everybody which his malicious brain has the power to conceive would be affected by his ravings. But Judge Pyle and Governor Gibbs [illegible] as they did their duty.

But to return to the point. The Commissioners of this county assumed themselves the authority to appoint a judge, which I am informed was contrary to the expressed opinion and advice of every Attorney in the county. In the meantime a petition was gotten up recommending the present incumbent, Argersinger, to the Governor as a fit person to occupy the position, which petition was numerously signed by good men, reliable men and men in whom the Governor of Oregon might well repose his confidence. Democrats, as well as Union men sought the privilege of subscribing their names to a petition recommending Mr. A[illegible] knowing him to be a man of integrity, capabilities of no mean order and a man in whom every person had every confidence in every capacity in which he might be placed. So far so good. Did Governor Gibbs commit a wrong when he appointed such a man to the Judgeship of Union County? Every reader, of a sane mind, would say most emphatically no! Then where is the wrong in Governor Gibbs?

Judge Pyle acted conscientiously in recommending Mr. A. He did what he conceived to be his duty. He knew full well, as a lawyer, that the appointment of Dr. Boswell by the Commissioners was a mere nullity, void of itself, then of course he must as a citizen, recommend him in whom he found the proper qualifications for the position. His judgment told him that Mr. A was that man and as a consequence he favored his appointment. Where is the wrong with Judge Pyle? It has vanished like a myth—like the charge against the Governor, it has no facts to back it up. Politically Judge Pyle is known, but to those who know him not personally, I would say, that instead of being the personification of the devil, as the writer in the Review would have you think, he is in fact a man to be respected; a good neighbor, quiet, inoffensive, gentlemanly in his demeanor, and of large heart and generous impulses. All that can be said of the Judge in the newspapers by his enemies can in no way effect his standing as a man, among those who know him best.

The Judgeship, however, is now settled. Dr. Boswell has ingloriously fled the field. Unfortunately for him, during the short period for which he officiated as Judge he had neither clerk, causes nor lawyers before him, nor to assist him. On the other hand, Judge Argersinger when he received his commission and the proper time came, opened court, and was blessed with a clerk, causes and lawyers (perhaps the last is not a blessing), and "all went merry as a marriage bell." Justice was dispensed, county business once more transacted much to the gratification of many of the creditors of the county, and particularly to the legal fraternity.

Peace has now been declared and may the unnecessarily embittered feeling which has been created subside and harmony once more prevail within the limits of our dearly beloved Union county.

Their "Principles."—Rev. Mr. Nasby has written another letter to the faithful of his party. He describes a "Democrat" and "Democratic principles" exactly in the following words:

A ginooine northern Dimekrat wants but little here below, but wants that little long. Give him a small post office, a nigger driver to look up to, a nigger to look down to, and he is sooprcmely happy. If a angel in glory waz two offer 2 trade places with him, harp, golden crown and all, he would ask odds.

In the same letter Mr. Nasby relates the substance of a conversation which he had at Washington with "General Marion Sumpter Fitzboo Gasher" of Mississippi. He and the General were trying to devise means to reorganize the "Democratic" party. This officer, according to Mr. Nasby, acquired a great reputation in the rebel army, was one of the "chivalry" who put the garrison of Fort Pillow to the sword, and had at last come to Washington to be "consiliated." The General instructs Mr. Nasby how to proceed in the matter of restoring the "Democratic" party to power. He tells the reverend gentleman that the Northern wing of the party may have some of the petty offices as a reward for their faithfulness, and adds:

For ourselves all we ask is to make the platform and hev such offices so hawty, high toned men kin afford 2 take, and you uns kin hev the rest.

But won thing must be understood. The scenes uv the Charleston Convenshun must never be re-enacted—there must be no more Dugluses. Under the now dispensation you dance whenever we fiddle, askin no questions. The Southern hart must never again be fired; it wouldn't assume itself.

[illegible] I hev took the oath, I shall immediately go home and run for Congress, and see to it that you hev enuff Democrats ther that we jintly kin control things. [illegible] there must be equality [illegible] must never be paled unless ourn is; his hardins must never be [illegible] What a delightful spektacle! Men who yesterday was a [illegible] each other onto the bloody battle to-day a drawin pensions and bills from the same treasury. The [illegible] flop his wings with joy and angels will exclaim "Bully!" [illegible] from the field and [illegible]

[illegible] my friend and marshal for the [illegible] to collect a [illegible] and I and General Forrest and [illegible] Ferguson and Dick [illegible] and perhaps that [illegible] General Robert E. Lee will [illegible] stump the North for your tickets. I [illegible]

Treatment of Union Prisoners.—Major [illegible] of the United States Judge Advocate General's office, has lately returned to the from the Southern prisons, where he has been collecting evidence with a view to bringing to justice those who maltreated Union prisoners during the war. Captain Wirtz, late commandant of the Andersonville Prison, has been arrested and is now lodged in the Old Capitol. Various other parties of the same ilk, against whom charges have been preferred, will soon be arrested and their several cases investigated.

Late telegraphic dispatches inform us that this [illegible] Wirtz was arraigned [illegible] a Military Commission on the [illegible] Additional evidence was [illegible] against him. If it be proved that [illegible] who has [illegible] of that [illegible] Andersonville, he will certainly [illegible] guilty—and there seems but [illegible] no species of punishment [illegible] shocking to humanity [illegible] suffer [illegible] quite him for his atrocities.

Gold Mines in Virginia.—[illegible] gold [illegible] counties of Virginia [illegible] work in Goochland and Louisa counties taking out two pennyweights per [illegible] also [illegible] in Buckingham, Fluvanna, Culpepper and [illegible] counties. A Richmond paper says:

The quartz veins are large and very rich, and will pay well, but not a single [illegible] working. In the gold districts [illegible] some are working with stone [illegible] and in that rude way [illegible] well. It is will be a brighter dawn upon the gold mines of Virginia before the coming winter.

Miss Mary Harris, the girl [illegible] of the murder of Burroughs, at Washington, is at Baltimore, where she will remain a few weeks, when she will go to her parents in Burlington. A communication from [illegible], by his attorney, concerning Front street and the triangular block No. [illegible], was submitted. [illegible]

On motion to indefinitely postpone [illegible] of the communication, which was in the form of a remonstrance against the running of the street in its present course, it was stated that the [illegible] had been once before brought to the attention of the Council and referred to the city attorney, and was now in law, and there was no necessity for the council taking action in the matter. The question was indefinitely postponed.

W. S. Ladd and others, owners of property on [illegible] street, protested against planking that street as proposed, but favored graveling and laying [illegible] of side-walks as the Council may direct. The matter was referred to the committee on streets and public property.

The [illegible] on fire and water, to whom was [illegible] the account of Savison & Elliott, for the construction of the truck for Vigilance Hook and Ladder Company, reported that the same was completed in fine order, and recommended that a warrant for the sum of $825 be drawn in favor of the firm named. [illegible] transferring to the general fund [illegible] balances remaining in the City Treasury [illegible] credit of several funds, passed.

[illegible] the Council adjourned.

[illegible] —Past experiences have been quite sufficient [illegible] city to show the necessity of a hall or theatre [illegible] capable of accommodating the public on public [illegible] and at the same time afford visitors of the play [illegible] suitable place of resort during theatrical [illegible] of this size should certainly possess a [illegible] building. We are denied the pleasure [illegible] the drama, on account of the filthy [illegible] obliged to take up with; and it is [illegible] nearly every troupe attempting to fill [illegible] Portland have had a bad financial engagement [illegible] will not support a troupe where there [illegible] comfort during [illegible] play, let the performers act their part [illegible]. It has often been intimated that [illegible] foot to supply this want in our city, [illegible] or other nothing has been done. We [illegible] about half officially, that another effort [illegible] for the building of a Theatre, [illegible] of a three-story brick building on [illegible] by 120 feet in size. We presume a plan [illegible] on that basis for an elegant building for [illegible] public speaking, etc., and from [illegible] of the gentlemen who are proposing to [illegible], if once started we feel very sure it [illegible] start it by all means.

[illegible] —We have been shown by a [illegible] city, a private letter from the Black [illegible], near the base of the Rocky mountains, [illegible] encouraging reports of this section [illegible] the trade of those rich mines. Prices [illegible] were high, and the [illegible] to whom it was addressed [illegible] a team at once for the Black [illegible] are richer, beyond a question, from [illegible] we have obtained, than any in the [illegible] at this late season would be [illegible]. We have no [illegible] from the [illegible] of a high order—the gold being in [illegible]. Next year will show us a [illegible] a trade, that will exceed [illegible].

[illegible] late letter from Fort Colville [illegible] that the new steamer [illegible] be launched by the 20th [illegible] boat. The news received [illegible] the miners [illegible] little thought of. A great [illegible] work near Colville, on the bars of [illegible] from $2 50 to $3 per day, the gold [illegible] that found on the lower [illegible].

[illegible] ASYLUM.—The Asylum for the [illegible] the under[illegible] some [illegible]erable [illegible], or main building, has been [illegible] making a fine three story structure, sur[illegible] and a wing has been built upon the [illegible] the same dimensions as that of the south [illegible] high, 60 by 60 feet. Other conveniences [illegible] for the comfort of the patients. Some [illegible] men, women, boys and girls are inmates [illegible].

[illegible] —Eight hundred feet of new hose, pur[illegible] the [illegible] Fire Company, arrived by the Sierra [illegible] and will be tested this evening at [illegible] Company No. 2. This is the [illegible] for the Wet Foot Company, the first [illegible] the wreck of the Brother Jonathan.

[illegible] WATSON.—The regiment of which Lieut. Watson [illegible], are having a fine elaborately [illegible] tomb stone prepared in this city by [illegible] Bros., to mark the head of his grave at [illegible] Lieut. Watson, it will be remembered, [illegible] the campaign against the Indians, near [illegible], about one year ago.

[illegible] "GEORGE."—The horse Vermont, entered by [illegible] George entered by Dennison [illegible] Course yesterday afternoon was [illegible] from the match upon payment of the forfeit, and [illegible] closed off. We are not informed whether [illegible] between other horses.

[illegible] PAPERS.—Immediately upon the arrival of the [illegible], last evening, McCormick sent us a lot of new [illegible] papers. He has our thanks. [illegible] who [illegible] papers can get them by calling [illegible] M. McCor[illegible].

A DECLARATION.—The [illegible] Union [illegible] of California does [illegible] enough [illegible]. In every case the bolters have had [illegible] to the aid of the Copperheads. [illegible] The Marysville Appeal says of the [illegible] movements:

GENERAL LOGAN ON NEGRO EQUALITY.—General John A. Logan recently delivered a speech to the citizens of [illegible] the pursuit that [illegible] anti-slavery amendment of the Constitution of the United States which has been ratified by [illegible] States [illegible] the clause [illegible] that the Amendment will give Congress the right to enforce the social and political equality [illegible] That no such thing was [illegible] the following [illegible]:

[illegible] the question of negro suffrage in the States. This Congress has [illegible] to [illegible] make the first section effective. In other words [illegible] The Constitution of the United States has already distinctly reserved [illegible] keeping of each State the regulation of the suffrage question. I have frequently [illegible] and amusement at the [illegible] with which missing [illegible] have [illegible] what they call social equality. [illegible] Congress [illegible] over which it [illegible] a man with a [illegible] that Congress can have [illegible] nurse [Laughter.] How can Congress pass a law to make any one white man say that another white man or black man shall be his guest or companion? [illegible] will regulate itself, and at the same time it will regulate all questions of [illegible] and equality [illegible] the [illegible] that there [illegible] with a white wife or a white man with a black wife. [Laughter and applause.]

There white people are white people, and there black people are black people [illegible] the South kinkyheads [illegible] white as anybody. [Great applause.] It is an unfortunate thing for the negroes in the South that they take their status from their mother. If from the father they would be almost as many [illegible] free as they are slaves. [Laughter.] The truth is that the practical amalgamationists are the Southern people. I was told an amusing story last winter while in Savannah to this effect. There was before the Legislature of Georgia a bill to expatriate all the free negroes in the State. Against the barbarous measure the citizens of Savannah entered a most pathetic protest. A remonstrance went up from that good city to the Legislature signed by almost everybody. The reason for the remonstrance, it was said by the friends of the measure was that everybody in Savannah were kinsfolks. [Laughter.]

A NEW SWINDLE.—Some time about the first of July a stranger made his appearance in Bristol, giving his name as Francis, and professing to be from Maine and to be desirous of "purchasing horses." He hired a team, drove out to Plymouth, then back to [illegible] and seemed to be poking about in a vague and uncertain way. One night about ten o'clock some of the good people of Bristol were alarmed on hearing agonized shrieks as of somebody in mortal suffering. The noise was traced to a spot in the road near the stocking factory, where there is an embankment, the sides of which slope down eight or ten feet from the road, so situated, however, that the spot was not considered as dangerous, or as needing even a railing. The stranger was found lying on his back and yelling dismally. He said he had broken his collar bone, if not his back, and one or two of his ribs, but strange to say, his horse and wagon were found all right, the wagon not even upset, and the horse all harnessed and quietly feeding. The man, with many groans, was taken up and carried to S. J. Root's house, where he remained a week, suffering greatly and perfectly helpless. He was sure his collar bone was broken, but Dr. Way, who was called daily to attend him, couldn't "see it." He spit blood, from injuries received by his lungs, but the doctor insisted on examining his mouth for the seat of the injury, he, however, discovered nothing. The suffering stranger was removed to the hotel, where he lingered in torment for another week, when he began to improve, and gradually got so he could limp about the office, and spoke of suing the town for $1,000 damages. This claim he subsequently lowered to $500, and finally to $300, but would "not abate another cent." At last, however, he agreed to take the sum of one hundred in cash paid down. This he received, and on Saturday last, feeling better, thought he would try his stiff and sore limbs by walking. He walked and walked, and is believed to be still walking, for he never came back to pay his board bill, his doctor or his horse hire. His only baggage consisted of an extra shirt. We can inform our Bristol friends that this fellow is in all probability the same man who not long ago practiced this same game on the Selectmen of a number of towns in New Hampshire, Vermont and Massachusetts. He gets his living by this queer and original swindle, and in some cases pointing to a broken wagon, etc., has obtained large sums from towns that preferred to pay rather than stand a suit.—Hartford Times.

AN INCIDENT.—A friend recently met in the cars a fine looking farmer past middle life, belonging to a Northern State, who, in conversation, had his story (how like thousands of others!) to tell. With pride and tears in his eyes, he said, in the course of the conversation, "My two sons went to the army. One of them died in the service—that's the other sitting there. I wanted to go with them, but was too old. After they were gone I found I couldn't carry on the old place—it was too lonely; so I sold out everything and moved into the village and lived as quietly as I could, waiting for the boys to come home."—Boston Transcript.

James Hargrove, one of the wealthiest and largest negro traders in the State, stepped into a store on Bridge street, Lynchburg, Va., the other day and placing a pistol to his head, shot himself dead. He had invested some of his property in Confederate bonds, and three days before the surrender of Lee had bought thirty slaves, which, of course, were soon set free, and he was penniless.

A few weeks ago the famous Massachusetts Second passed through New York city on its way to Boston. This regiment which has numbered 1,700 men on its rolls since it went to the field in 1861, now musters only 200. Of the missing nearly one half fell in the field, and not a few sunk under the cruelties practiced at the Libby Prison.

Alfred Tennyson, the poet laureate of England, is failing very fast. He was just recovering from a hard attack of throat disease when, waking late one evening in his Isle of Wight garden, he took cold—now, it is stated, symptoms of consumption are evident. His friends are going to remove him to the south of France at once, as the only chance of saving his life.

The Montana people are in a pretty fix this fall for the elective franchise privilege. The last Legislature neglected to make arrangements, statutory and otherwise, for holding the coming election; hence it is believed there can be no election called, no Delegate to Congress, and no nothing until a special statute is passed on this point by Congress.

We suppose that President Johnson hears the old phrase, "beg your pardon," oftener than any other man in America.

FALSE DELICACY.—The friends of those who are troubled with bad breath, and, through over-squeamishness, dislike to refer to it, commit a positive and cruel mistake, especially if they are aware of the merits and great efficacy of the Fragrant Sozodont. This is the true and only remedy for the difficulty; there is no valid excuse for a bad breath now.

Sold by all Druggists.

A Universal Medicine.—By what we eat, by the air we breathe, or by the water we drink, we can be made sick, because these effects end by producing impurity of blood. To regain health we must purify the blood by the organs of the stomach and bowels; these organs must be continued in the regular performance of that duty which nature has assigned them, and should there be any impediment, to what does experience point? To BRANDRETH'S PILLS, which cannot injure, and which will surely restore the bowels to the regular performance of their duties.

The dyspeptic, the billious, will find them a treasure of health, and the same may be said to all who are sick in any way. Take BRANDRETH'S PILLS and be cured.

Interesting Letter from Richmond

We are permitted to print the following letter written by a gentleman who lately visited Richmond. It is relative to the city:

Richmond, Va., July 24th, 1865.

At 1 A. M. I took passage on the splendid steamer [illegible] from Norfolk for City Point. This is one of the line which runs from Norfolk to Richmond, connecting with the Baltimore [illegible]. The [illegible] is a remarkably fast boat. She ran from Norfolk to Fortress Monroe, which I was on board, 18 miles, in 50 minutes. We made the run to City Point from Fortress Monroe in four and a half hours—about [illegible] miles. As high up as City Point, the James river is wide—very wide in some places. The banks are low and wooded, and luxuriantly decked with vegetation. The water is very muddy. Shortly after 12 o'clock we reached City Point, famous for Gen. Grant's base of supplies. Just before reaching City Point we passed Harrison's Landing, on the north bank of the James. This was Gen. McClellan's base in the disastrous Peninsular campaign. Here his army was nearly annihilated in its retreat. Here lay the gunboat on which the General took refuge. How changed are our affairs since then!

City Point is situated on the Southern bank of the James, just at its junction with the Appomattox. Petersburg is upon the Appomattox and 10 miles from City Point. There are immense wharves, barracks, hospitals, deserted stores, storehouses, railroads and great tracts of graves at City Point. I stayed three hours looking about. Everything told of a great, energetic war. It required many long weary months for the army to advance 10 miles to take Petersburg.

At 4 P. M. I took the United States military railroad to Petersburg. The road is rough and unsafe and can only be used for low speed. We were just one hour making ten miles. All along the road were deserted fortifications, barns destroyed, fences and improvements obliterated, &c. Turning to the left, I saw Grant's famous railroad for supplying his extended lines with war material, &c. Grant could sit in his tent at City Point and by telegraph hold communication with all parts of his lines, and even with the whole of the loyal country. As soon as an advance was made the telegraph and railroad followed.

Petersburg is a fine looking city, about the same size as Norfolk, but has suffered very much from the siege. It looks [illegible]—especially in the business part. Houses are shattered and torn by shot and shell in every direction. Great gaping holes in walls, great piles of ruins—all these tell of the fierce struggle. The hotel at which I stayed—the Bollingbrook—was perforated in several places by shell. There was a shell lying in the yard unexploded. The clerk of the hotel, seeing me collecting relics, said to me "There's a shell you can have." But when I saw that it had not exploded I laid it down tenderly and declined the offer, for I am prejudiced against those instruments. Said a little contraband to me speaking of the siege: "Golly, massa, those tings used to bus' aroun' think over our heads." From all I saw I should say the darky was right.

Going out on the different roads, I noticed temporary retreats dug out of side hills, etc., for protection against shells. They had hot times here beyond a doubt.

My chief attention was devoted to examining the fortifications around Petersburg. Here the chief battles were fought which settled the fate of Richmond. Walking a mile or so out of town along the Appomattox, I struck the inner line of rebel works. Thence for miles out, and all around the city in an immense circuit, nothing but trenches, abbatis and forts. Such elaborate digging and trenching probably the world never saw before. The outer line of rebel defences was aided much by a natural trench in the shape of a deep and difficult ravine, densely overgrown with brush. It would be a great task to cross this without an enemy preventing, but in the face of an enemy utterly impossible. At this point our forces made no headway. Hence, General Grant kept swinging around to the south of Petersburg. Our gunboats could not get up the Appomattox so far, and so the river offered few advantages to us.

I visited those celebrated Federal Forts "Hell," "Damnation," "Steadman," etc., and also the scene of the great explosion before Gen. Burnside's corps. Fort Hell is a tremendous work. All these forts are built of earth, with great logs in front to keep the earth in place. The men lived in bomb-proofs dug out under the sides. It is curious to notice the zig zag trenches leading from one part of the Fort to another. In these fortifications, both Federal and rebel, everything was done entirely underground. In advance of each fort were trenches, and in advance of these trenches were little holes for the remotest pickets. Beyond all, sharp, pointed abatis through which it seems as though no man could enter. The Federal and Rebel works came very near together towards the last, so that it was certain death for any man to show his face. From the Federal fortifications I could just see the spires of Petersburg. Yet, such is the perfection of our artillery, that Grant could easily shell the place from that distance, and plant his shells, too, right in the center of the city.

Shot and shell lay very thick in all the trenches and forts. I wonder that any could have escaped this iron hail. I saw a skull unburied at the crater, where a rebel fort was blown up. Several rebel forts concentrated their fire on that crater after the explosion, and it became a pit of death for our men. Delay was fatal to them.

I procured several 10 inch shells, and some shot which I have sent to New York by express. I will send you a sample something that will be well to keep as a memento of this great war.

I have a very good idea now of the whole ground, and shall eagerly read the history of the Petersburg campaign in after years. I saw the fortifications just as they were. Soon they will be effaced—for some of them are made in private orchards—and I feel thankful that I have seen them before anything is disturbed.

The next day I took the morning train from Petersburg for Richmond. The road runs through an interesting rolling country, but little improved. Reached Manchester, a town opposite Richmond, north bank of James river, at 11 A. M., and in one hour more, by means of a carriage crossing a pontoon bridge, I was in Richmond. Passing up Main street, I soon came to the burned district—an [illegible] tract of the finest part of the city, burned by rebels on evacuating the place. Such ruin is really sad to behold, and so useless, too. It is a fit relic of rebel barbarity.

In the afternoon I visited the State Capitol, and what was once also the Confederate Capitol. It is a fine looking building in a Park on Capitol Hill. I went into the halls of the Confederate Congress—everything disorder, indicating a hasty retreat. I also visited the loyal Legislature which was then in session. They were few but earnest men.

From the windows of the capitol I could see Belle Isle, where so many of our prisoners were starved and murdered.

I visited Libby Prison and Castle Thunder the following day. There are immense tobacco warehouses, with dingy appearance and heavy barred windows. Rebs are now confined here, a low looking set of men, too.

On Sunday I visited the great African Church where Jeff Davis in a public meeting tried for the last time to "fire the Southern heart." Here I saw about 1,500 colored persons at Sabbath School. They sang "I want to be an Angel" splendidly. A notice was read by the Superintendent: A mother seeking for her daughter—was sold in Richmond only last fall—scar on forehead, &c. Mother wants to be united with her child to enjoy her newly acquired freedom." Sabbath evening I went to St. Paul's Church, where Jeff Davis and Gen. Lee attended. It is a very aristocratic Church—fine singing, &c. Jeff's pew stands empty always. General Lee worshipped there in the forenoon. I did not see him. The minister prayed for the President of the United States, said nothing about the Confederacy.

Richmond is yet a beautiful city, notwithstanding the desolation of war. The people are thoroughly rebel but feel as though they are quite conquered. The stars and stripes are seen everywhere in the city. The United States soldiers picket the street corners. Bands of music play "Hail Columbia," &c., every night.

EXPLANATION OF GOVERNOR PERRY'S SPEECH.—A friend of Governor Perry, and apparently by his authority, has caused the publication of a communication in which he says:

"Three days before the meeting at Greenville, South Carolina, Governor Perry was appointed Provisional Governor, that the latter was not only not informed of his appointment but had not the remotest idea that such an honor was to be conferred upon him. The purpose of Governor Perry in his address the writer says, was to show the people of South Carolina the great mistake they had made in seceding—the ruinous consequences to their beloved State and the humiliation and degradation to which they had been reduced. They had no cause for seceding and were in no danger from the election of President Lincoln. The writer says: It is not true as stated in some of the papers, that the Governor feels personally any humiliation in coming back into the Union, for he had no agency in going out of the Union, but he has feelings for his State. Governor Perry entreated Southern people in terms of earnestness to become loyal citizens and to repudiate forever and to teach their children to repudiate their political heresies which have ruined their country."

PRESIDENT JOHNSON AND THE MONROE DOCTRINE.—In so far as he advocated and sustained the Monroe doctrine and its application in the case of Mexico, Montgomery Blair [illegible] ably spoke the sentiments of President Johnson. There need be no doubt [illegible] that point [illegible] sentiment of the President in regard to it [illegible] Mr. B. could not have mistaken [illegible] to do so. But the ex-P[illegible] was in assuming that neither Mr. Johnson nor Secretary Seward [illegible] complete [illegible] to decide [illegible] the Monroe doctrine shall be [illegible] Mr. Blair [illegible] think that the whole power of the Administration should be immediately addressed to that one object, or at least that all other questions are [illegible] Mexico. The President evidently takes a different view. He considers the work of reconstruction and reorganization within the United States as demanding paramount attention just now, and he accordingly is content with the measures taken by his Secretary of State to keep the Mexican issue [illegible] in such manner that the United States shall lose no ground while awaiting the issue and opportunity to bring it to a focus. In the meantime the ill success of Maximilian's attempt to [illegible] Mexico, and the increasing embarrassments experienced by the French Emperor [illegible] French popular opposition to the Mexican Expedition will [illegible] and Mr. Seward in securing a satisfactory and peaceful solution of the question which shall have become ripe for decision. Certainly the Monroe doctrine is losing nothing at present by delay in its enforcement, and the march of events is more likely than otherwise to advance our cause.

Those who think with Mr. Blair that the Government should plunge at once into the question and make such an issue with Louis Napoleon that he can have no alternative but [illegible] or a war with the United States, may believe that the country has no objection to a foreign war. A little calm reflection and inquiry should satisfy them, however, that they are mistaken; that the people at large will prefer to cultivate the arts of peace for a while now, if it can be done without National humiliation. That the country is prepared to sustain the Monroe doctrine is doubtless true; but the country has also faith enough in Mr. Johnson and Seward's honesty, firmness and shrewdness, to be willing that they should [illegible] any day or time that they think advisable in efforts to vindicate it without resort to the sword before deciding upon that dreadful though sometimes indispensable alternative. The President knows he can afford to bide his time in all this. It is perfectly plain that Mexico is an elephant which neither Maximilian nor Louis Napoleon, nor both combined, can manage with profitable success. The French Emperor never would have fallen into this Mexican blunder if he had not supposed the American Union irretrievably destroyed. He sees clearly enough now that he is involved in a serious dilemma by the collapse of the rebel Confederacy. He knows well enough he cannot remain very long in Mexico, where he stands to-day in the person of his feeble instrument, baffled and defeated already. But how is he to retreat without humiliation? That is his trouble, and surely we can afford him ample time to find out and avail himself of means for escape. Especially can we do so when it is perfectly clear that the game is in our own hands—because France will not support her ruler in serious hazard of a war with us which could never result in her success, while within a few months it would sweep her commerce from the seas. In the end France must withdraw her intervention, why then should we challenge the just pride of her people by unseemly demands for more speedy action? Our present policy is masterly inactivity. Soon France will be ready to aid in bringing about the American Protectorate of Mexico or for the development of some other plan which shall give our neighbor tranquility and stability without the aid of European intervention.—Cin. Bulletin.

THE CHOLERA IN EGYPT.—A letter from Alexandria, of June 28th, furnishes details regarding the cholera, etc. It says the existence of the cholera was officially declared on the 11th of June, on which day three deaths occurred. By the end of the first week the deaths increased to about one hundred per day. By the end of the second week they reached about two hundred, and on the 27th the number was two hundred and fifty. There was much alarm and about 30,000 people quitted the city. Business was generally suspended, but Mr. Hall, the United States Consul-General, remained at his post and the business of the Consulate was transacted as usual. No cases of cholera had occurred among the American residents or on American vessels.

SHERIDAN'S SCOUTS.—A Connecticut cavalry soldier, who rode with Sheridan, says he was present when four regiments were ordered to Winchester in charge of sixteen hundred prisoners. The rebel cavalry harassed the guards on their march and finally recaptured one hundred men. "But we got into Winchester," said the cavalryman gleefully, "with seventeen hundred prisoners, one hundred more than we started with." During the march one of the prisoners asked "if Sheridan's men rode night and day?" "Oh no!" was the reply, "we get our regular sleep." "Humph! we don't!" said the rebel.

PORTLAND, September 1st, 1865.

[illegible] continues [illegible] fully [illegible] what it was four weeks ago, promising a much healthier trade for the fall and winter than was anticipated during the spring months.

The confidence of our merchants and of the whole people in the future commercial importance of this [illegible] particularly of the places which are situated on the great lines of trade by way of the Columbia river, is daily growing stronger. A constantly increasing interest is felt [illegible] regions [illegible] and it is positively certain that we shall have a valuable market there which cannot be engrossed or forestalled from elsewhere. All parties are [illegible] money [illegible] supply the mining districts with goods [illegible] permanent trade [illegible] [illegible] We are glad to observe the liberal policy [illegible] pursuing [illegible].

The bark A. A. Eldridge arrived on Sunday [illegible] cargo from the Sandwich Islands valued at [illegible] $28,000 [illegible] [illegible] with the Islands [illegible] leading staples of export and a gratifying increase [illegible] [illegible] from Honolulu for the second quarter of the present year shows an increase in value, compared with that of the same period in 1864, of $25,878 75. And for the first two quarters of [illegible] 1864 [illegible] $414,225 0[illegible] is shown. A [illegible] statement of the imports and exports shows [illegible] to favor of the Islands for the same period [illegible]

Total Domestic Exports for the First and Second Quarters 1865,	$753 11 88
Total Imports for the First and Second Quarters 1865	[illegible] 0 41
Excess of Exports over Imports during the First and Second Quarters 1865	$ 88 164 47

A statement [illegible] shows the value of exports [illegible] the different ports on the west coast of America for the second quarter of 1865, from which we learn that Portland [illegible] the value of such exports was $28 801 32. To other ports on the west coast of America $161 322 21. The balance was taken by whaling [illegible].

The Eldridge [illegible] this morning [illegible] from the [illegible] Alka [illegible] and Oak Point and a quantity of [illegible] will proceed on the return voyage to the Islands.

During the past week [illegible] vessels in the [illegible] arrived from San Francisco, bringing [illegible] merchandise. The Helen W. Almy left this morning and after loading with lumber will sail [illegible]. There is very little freight offering. The barkentine H. H. Scranton [illegible] will take [illegible] and having ample accommodations will carry passengers sailing for San Francisco [illegible].

We have nothing particularly interesting to report in financial matters. [illegible] Afternoon [illegible] Board met yesterday [illegible] at 11 A. M. [illegible]

Wholesale and Jobbing Prices.

PORTLAND, September 1st, 1865.

[illegible] The demand for merchandise for the Black Foot region [illegible] considerable and [illegible] continually [illegible] the week [illegible] better than for a long time past.

We have no particular changes to note in prices. [illegible] held firm but there is no advance on present stocks. Paints and oils have advanced considerably and the market is very unsettled. [illegible] is quoted at [illegible]

"CONSTITUTION WATER,"

THE ONLY REMEDY FOR DISEASES OF THE

BLADDER, KIDNEYS,

Gravel, Dropsical Swellings,

GENITAL DEBILITY, ETC.

THE ASTONISHING SUCCESS WHICH HAS attended this invaluable medicine renders it the most valuable one ever discovered. No language can convey an adequate idea of the immediate and almost miraculous change which it occasions in the debilitated and shattered system. In fact, it stands unrivalled as a remedy for the permanent cure of the maladies above-mentioned, and also—

DIABETES, IMPOTENCY,
LOSS OF MUSCULAR ENERGY,
PHYSICAL PROSTRATION,
INDIGESTION,
SEMINAL WEAKNESS,
GLEET, FLUOR ALBUS,

And in every disease in any way connected with the disorder or decay of the PROCREATIVE FUNCTIONS. Persons about to marry, if conscious of any weakness, should take the

CONSTITUTION WATER,

Whether broken down by excess, weak by nature, or impaired by sickness, the unstrung and relaxed organization is at once refreshed, revivified and built up. Well may this celebrated medicine be called the

MEDICAL WONDER.

The stooping, trembling victim of depression and debility becomes a new man; he stands erect, he moves with a firm step, his mind which was previously sunk in gloom or an almost idiotic apathy, becomes bright and active; and he goes forth regenerated, conscious of new vigor.—The medicine reaches the CONSTITUTION itself, and restores it to its normal condition.

IRRITATION OF THE NECK OF THE BLADDER, INFLAMMATION OF THE KIDNEYS, AND CATARRH OF THE BLADDER,
STRANGUARY AND BURNING, OR PAINFUL URINATING,
CALCULUS, GRAVEL,
BRICK DUST DEPOSIT, AND MUCOUS OR MILKY DISCHARGES AFTER URINATING.

For these diseases it is truly a sovereign remedy, and too much cannot be said in its praise. A single dose has been known to relieve the most urgent symptoms. TRY IT in these cases and you will ever give praise to

CONSTITUTION WATER.

Males or Females,

Are you troubled with that distressing pain in the small of the back, and through your hips? CONSTITUTION WATER will relieve you like magic.

ALLEN'S

LUNG BALSAM!

The Remedy for Curing

CONSUMPTION, COUGHS, COLDS,

Asthma, Croup,

Diseases of the Throat, Bronchitis, Pains and Oppression of the Chest and Lungs, Difficult Breathing, and all the Diseases of the Pulmonary Organs.

ITS ACTION IS EXPECTORANT, ALTERATIVE, SUDORIFIC, SEDATIVE, DIAPHORETIC AND DIURETIC, which renders it one of the most valuable remedies known for curing diseases of the lungs. It excites expectoration, and causes the lungs to throw off the phlegm or mucus; CHANGES THE SECRETIONS AND PURIFIES THE BLOOD; heals the irritated parts; gives strength to the digestive organs; brings the liver to its proper action, and imparts strength to the whole system. Such is the immediate and satisfactory effect, that it is WARRANTED TO BREAK UP THE MOST DISTRESSING COUGH IN A FEW HOURS TIME, if not of too long standing. IT IS WARRANTED to give entire satisfaction, even in the MOST CONFIRMED CASES OF CONSUMPTION! IT IS WARRANTED NOT to produce costiveness (which is the case with most remedies) or affect the head, as it contains no Opium in any form. IT IS WARRANTED TO BE PERFECTLY HARMLESS to the most delicate child, although it is an active and powerful remedy for restoring the system. THERE IS NO REAL NECESSITY FOR SO MANY DEATHS BY CONSUMPTION, when ALLEN'S LUNG BALSAM will prevent it if only taken in time.

Sold by all Druggists. Price $1 per bottle.
